ABOUT THE ARTIST

- Satish Gupta is India's celebrated painter, sculptor, poet, writer, printmaker, skilled draftsman, muralist, designer, and calligrapher all in one.
- His works have a deep engagement with mysticism and Zen spirit.
- Drawing inspiration from the roots of Indian civilization and its rich cultural storehouse, he brings a spirit of positivity and hopes to his works, and finds his inspiration from an inner peace and tranquility that is a benchmark of his works.

ABOUT THE ARTIST (CONTD.)

- His paintings and sculptures are in museums internationally including the Shanghai Museum of Modern Art, The Museum of Sacred Arts, Brussels, and The National Museum in Slovenia.
- Satish is known for his monumental copper sculptures. Some of the major ones are in the private collections of Art Ichol in India and many prominent personalities from the country.
- Satish Gupta stated he had a revelation while ascending the mountain to the Rumtek monastery in Sikkim. Surrounded by mist and clouds he understood he was at the center of the empty Zen circle, knew his place in the Cosmos, and comprehended the Oneness of it all.
- This transformative moment inspired his sculpture of the Buddha, "Shunya" named for a Sanskrit word that approximates the void or the absolute.

- The color palette and overlapping circles give the sculpture its distinct visual appeal, as it is both visually arresting and captivating.
- The sculpture is highly symbolic, as the overlapping circles represent the interconnectedness of all things, as well as the idea of duality.
