NANDAN PURKAYASTHA

- Born in Assam, Nandan Purkayastha is a Delhi-based contemporary artist, known for his depth and intricate monochrome drawings and paintings.
- Purkayastha's art blends influences from ancient Indian mythology and Western classics, with a focus on detailed pen and ink imagery.
- He has participated in successful solo and group exhibitions across India and internationally, including notable shows in Kolkata, Delhi, Mumbai, and Madrid's Mondo Art Gallery.

Rooted in nostalgia, Nandan draws inspiration from his formative years spent observing the making of Durga idols during the festive season; moments filled with devotion, community, and transformation. These early impressions instilled in him a deep respect for artistic craftsmanship and ritual.

In "Yali," Nandan Purkayastha conjures exuberance, where varmints, human forms, and lush flora intertwine in harmonious chaos. The compact composition resonates with a universal oneness, drawing from global traditions. Kathakali dancers, majestic tigers, and Westernised visages orbit a resplendent blue goddess, mirroring the artist's rich cultural odyssey. Myths and ancient stories intertwine with modern aesthetics, reshaping perception and inviting viewers into a cerebral, utopian dialogue.

Under the soft moonlight she reclaims her youthful beauty in the reflection of the stained mirror. All creatures both earthly and of heaven came together in appreciation of her enchanting beauty. How she wishes to drink this "Elixir of Moonlight" forever but alas with the first ray of sunshine this dream shall break.

Elixir of Moonlight | 60" x 44" | Acrylic, Watercolour and Pen & Ink on Paper | 2024

At the edge of becoming, a white elephant emerges—mythic and untouched—a silent genesis. From its breath unfolds The Eternal Cosmos, where tigers roam through surreal foliage, birds murmur through coral blooms, and masked figures reenact forgotten dramas. Swirling fabrics, celestial musicians, mirrored faces, and flowering arcs spiral in rhythm, echoing the cycles of nature, myth, and memory. Each detail hums with intent, composing a timeless melody where creation, dream, and devotion move as one unbroken pulse.
